terms “ we measure stuff” .
He began with a plan of London 1854.
It indicated a mass of BLACK and RED dots.
A Dr John Snow had noted where cholera victims had died (black dots) and the red dots indicated where there were water pumps. He then deduced that the water pumps were infected and hence the spread of the disease.
Back then information was found using cartography and surveying techniques. Now with the digital age we have Spatial Location Intelligence.
It was a most comprehensive and fascinating presentation and question time had to be cut short. Thank you Gabriel, we would welcome you back anytime or next time you are the Gong.
